This is a funny assignment which is just to draw. At first, I am so curious about how to draw a picture inside a website. After watching over most of the video from Joe Marini, I realized how incredible it is. What I need to do is to use code to draw everything. However, it is so tedious to do that. At first, I spent 2 hours to draw R2 (from STAR WARS) but it is too ugly. After that I can only use the canvas image to satisfy myself. Hah. It became much easier.

I have checked it over the Chrome, Safari, FireFox, IE, and the other two browsers. They all work perfectly.

In the end, I love this tech. It makes my website look like a drawing.
